“ I only met Christine locally at the day before near Washington DC and I can't say what a lasting impression she gave me from the first day. She was a very vibrant, bright and enthusiastic person and I was looking forward to working with her. It's unfortunate that I cannot continue a partnership with her and her time was cut short. My heart really goes out to her family and co-workers, as all of us that trained with her feel deeply saddened. My prayers go to her family for I hope they find comfort that she did have friends nearby, by her side that day. God Bless.##imported-begin##John Varney##imported-end##

“ As I sit read reading over the prior postings from friends, family & co-workers, I was hit with an array of emotions. It is truly a blessing to read how so many described my cousin. She was the same exact way growing up. Positive, loving, caring, with a beautiful smile and deep dimples. Reflecting on these times, make me regret the times we didn't get to share. I will forever treasure the memories and times. Chrissy will be missed, but never forgotten. To my family take comfort in God's word "These is no sorrow on earth that heaven can heal" Much love, Maria##imported-begin##Maria Hadley##imported-end##

“ Dear Michelle and the Richardson family,

I was sorry to hear of the loss of your beloved sister. I am keeping you and your family in my prayers.

St. Peter has opened the gates for Christine and she is fine. That does not dismiss the sorrow and sadness you and your family feel now. But Christine's love for you will carry with you to the rest of your days. It will not leave you.

God bless you and your family.

Always,

“ I am so sorry for your loss. My heart goes out to all of Christine's family. She was a friend to all at Mathematica and was patient beyond measure. One of the many things Christine did was unlock timesheets for people (like me) who entered our passwords incorrectly on a regular basis. She always had a pleasant disposition as she reset my password due to a careless input error. I will have to be far more careful as I am sure no one else will be as kind and supportive about my typos! I will miss her very much.##imported-begin##Anne Ciemnecki##imported-end##
