“ I didn't know Bug, but I know Nikima. Through her, I feel like I knew him too. Thank you for sharing your journey of unconditional love. May it be a lesson to us all to hug our loved ones a little tighter, and to always do the things that are hard because love can outshine even the darkest of days.

“ Where do I begin? The time we laughed at Grandma in the store in Georgia, when we found her on her knees and then realized she fell. How about when you saved me from that crazy dog I adopted. He was attacking me because he thought I took his food and you were upstairs and thought you heard me call out your name. Good thing you checked it out. You grabbed that dog by the neck to get it off of me. Remember the time you had to rush me to the hospital because of severe stomach pains and stayed with me. Fortunately it was a false alarm but you got in trouble because your friend was mad that you stood her up. I remember our many walks, just you and I, in your stroller when you were a baby. We always walked for hours and I never thought to take food or diapers along, haha. Thanks for mowing my lawn when you lived with me - you were great company. Hey, remember that Westfield snow storm with my kids and we wanted to make something to eat but realized there wasn't any mayo. You went ahead, I'm sure against your wishes to make it, not realizing how long it would take - that was funny. How about that awful peanut butter sauce - yuk!! How about when I power washed the decks and you had to come downstairs & outside every single time to get it started. Bet you hated all those interruptions. I'm so grateful for all our many memories throughout the years. I will treasure them forever. I wished we had more time with you!! Love, Aunt Donna
