“ Will sadly miss our Thursday outing and having a snack with you. Isabelle loved to reminisce and I enjoyed listening to her stories and experiences in life. I met her when I had a little house with a huge 2 acre garden and chickens and she stopped by to ask if she could buy my chicken eggs. She was dressed impeccably in her (Sunday best) her little hat, gloves and dress shoes. I told her - "hum, I really don't sell these eggs, but for you, they're free". From that time on, we became friends. She stopped by weekly for eggs and I would throw in some of the veggies from my garden. She invited me to her home and that's how it all started. She became upset when I sold the house and moved to the Poconos, but I promised her I would definitely visit her at least once a week as I still was employed at the hospital. I am glad she graciously stepped into my life. What a pleasure, what a lady.##imported-begin##Nellie Brenner##imported-end##
