“ You were and always will be my best friend. I thought about you almost everyday. I watched you fight your illness with every bit of strength you had no matter how hard days got at times you still kept your head up and kept your family happy. You never gave up and i know you wouldnt give up in that hospital without a fight. I cried when i heard the news. I miss you and the boys everyday. I do smile though because now you are with Trish your sister and angel who kept you going for so many years. We would have so many conversations about you and her. All them crazy and wild stories you entertained myself and some of the other girls that came over... we al;ways said we came to hang out with paul but the truth to that was we really wanted to hang out with you. You were my "mom" i talked to you about everything and anything. I wish I could of been with you these last few months. Now I know though, youre up in heaven with trish, waiting for all of your children, not just your 3 boys and your husband waiting for us to come up and "shoot the shit" once again. I know you'll be keeping an eye out not just for your blood but for your children from another mother. If i disapoint you you better make sure you visit my ass and set me straight. You always told me what the F was up wheter it hurt to hear or not. You knew I needed to hear whatever it was. I LOVE YOU AND I MISS YOU EVERYDAY

LoVe Always
