“ My best friend and love of my life. My high school sweetheart... we always panned on getting married when we turned thirty.... I miss u so much. And I'm so sorry I wasn't there. I want my soulmate back. Now it just feels like a permanent piece of my heart and soul will forever be lost. Melissa I was still and always will be in love with you and we both knew it was a mutual feeling..... now what do i do without you.

Are you sure? Around the time of her death she expressed she had a heroin addiction. Did you know about that? I was her co worker at acme markets. We worked together.

She said she lived with her she didnt know what to call him boyfriend. She loved counter strike. Her lancer was looking good. She lived at summit apartments. I wonder what really happened. Family trauma? Abuse? Home abuse? Idk but its sad.

I am her mom and she didn't have any home abuse. She was loved so much and was told that she could always come home and live. She would come and visit us every couple weeks and she seemed fine.

Her dad and I didn't know about her heroin abuse but the employees at ACME did. I wish they had stood up with us outside of her work and confronted her. She denied everything to us and Crissy was there and never said a word
