“ I was so sad to hear about Sandra, who was for a long time my very close friend and colleague in Amersham and GE Healthcare where I was her "opposite number" in the UK. She is a great loss, and although we hadn't had much contact recently she was for many years an important person in my life. We went through a lot together, helping each other to weather the storms of some difficult times at work. When we were working together we spoke almost every day; we became very close and I could regard her as my best friend and confidante. She was wonderful to work with, as she was always completely honest and sensible, providing valuable insights to tricky situations, and a thoroughly nice person. She was very amenable and easy to work with in most things, but tougher than anyone when she needed to stand her ground.

We didn't see each other "in the flesh" very often, but I will always remember meeting her with Mark, who was the most important person in her life while he was with us. She never recovered from his loss.

I will always remember her as a valuable colleague, close friend and an all round wonderful person. I will miss her.

Goodbye, my friend.
